An organization's net income is noted, showing the amount that will be set aside to handle certain obligations outside of shareholder dividend Short Summary William Hargrove, Secretary General of the International Trade Organisation is quoted as saying that it is more likely than not that there will be an increase in world trade. Description William Hargrove, Secretary General of the International Trade Organisation is quoted as saying that it is more likely than not that there will be an increase in world trade. He also said that ITA (International Trade Association) is formed to further the interests of the nations trading with one another through the promotion of international trade, and to coordinate the activities of the world's trade organisations The members are Germany, Switzerland, Belgium, United States of America, Canada, Japan, Russia, Britain, France, Italy, Spain, Japan, Greece and Turkey. No one here today at the Lisbon conference however, appears to have any apprehension about the future of the economy of the Third World. And one person said, in fact, that if trade increases, there will be more jobs for developing nations to create. Perhaps, he said, it will even be a little more difficult for people to hide behind the 'don't know' excuse when things go wrong. More likely than not however, some of them say, there will be trade for
